The handle might make it look like a bucket, but the Soundcast Melody is actually a speaker--specifically an omni-directional Bluetooth speaker ideal for outdoor use.

It features a water- and UV-resistant all-weather plastic enclosure (complete with a sturdy handle) and a high-capacity rechargeable battery promising 20 hours of playtime, as well as x4 bass radiators and x4 full-range speakers pushing 360-degree audio.

At 4kg it is also not too heavy.

Connectivity comes through Bluetooth and 3.5mm jack, while charging options include USB, AC and 12V car adapter.

"I could not be more pleased with the way Melody looks, sounds and performs," Soundcast president Mike Weaver states. "Melody is certain to be a game changer for our brand."

The Melody will be available in our territories from July 2013.
