

VideoWave Gets Sequel

Written by Marco Attard
17. 07. 2012

Bose reveals the 2nd generation VideoWave "entertainment system"-- the VideoWave II, an HDTV/console combination providing a "complete" Bose home cinema and music system.

The TV gets a design refresh with an aluminium bezel, updated click pad remote control and LED backlighting. It comes in either 46- or 55-inch sizes and carries a 7-element speaker array (with x6 woofers) hidden behind the display.

The TV connects to the console, now with a built-in iDevice dock and inputs including x4 HDMI, x2 component, x1 composite video and x2 USB.

Bose also provides ADAPTiQ technology-- an exclusive audio calibration system Bose claims adapts to room acoustics.

Mounting comes through either included detachable table stand or 3rd party VESA wall brackets.

Go Bose VideoWave II