

Bat Cave? No, Bat Home Theatre

Written by Marco Attard
14. 08. 2012

---

With the The Dark Knight Rises proving to be a cinematic hit, your customers might decide they want a Bat Cave-- just like the customers building a $2 million Bat Home Theatre in their California home.

And what a home theatre it is! Built as an undercave cave accessible via elevator, it has 6 Batsuits, 12 seats, a 180-inch screen and a Batcomputer at the back. Topping all is a bookshelf hiding a secret room containing a replica of Batman's vehicle of choice, the Tumbler.

The design comes from Elite Home Theatre Seating (EHTS), who states "our goal was to fuse together the cozy elements of Wayne Manor, with the Art Deco styling of Gotham City."

Before you ask, of course we would like our own Batcave. Who wouldn't? Maybe you should build it for them!

Go Dark Knight Home Theatre