

Home Automation, Security, or Both?

Written by Marco Attard
05. 04. 2011

---

Honeywell adds home automation to its security system portfolio, allowing customers to manage both with a single device, the 6280 graphical touchpanel.

Carrying a 7" touchscreen, the 6280 not only acts as a UI for Honeywell's Vista alarm systems (with ethernet port and built-in web server for security monitoring) but it can also handle an entire home automation system (including lighting, door, shades and HVAC systems) via RF technology and Z-Wave.

It will be available in 3 models-- a basic model with built-in SD card, a home controller with Z-Wave capability and webserver, and a wifi version.

Honeywell will also be showcasing the system at ISC West 2011.

Go Honeywell Showcases Connected Home Solutions