Media centre and server maker VidaBox increases its European presence following an exclusive distribution agreement with Modena-based AlhenaCom.

AlhenaCom is the exclusive Italian VidaBox distributor, and the agreement expands distribution throughout continental Europe.

"Thanks to the excellent feedback received from the Italian customers in these months and thanks mainly to the excellent relationship between our companies, I am sure that the European market will give us a great satisfaction for our continued cooperation," VidaBox president Steven Cheung says.

VidaBox sells multiroom Blu-ray, DVD and digital media server products, as well as iDevice-based control systems, media extenders and even iPad mounting solutions.
