Samsung reveals a big brother to the ES8000 Smart TV at a London event hosted by retailer John Lewis-- the 75-inch ES9000 "Premium Smart TV" with a "super-ultra-slim" design.

The company says the ES9000 is 56% thinner than previous models, with a 7.9mm bezel finished in "rose gold." It shares a dual-core processor (complete with smart TV capability and gesture-based interaction) as well as a LED-backlit Diamond Black panel with the ES8000.

Meanwhile the top edge carries a retractable webcam unit.

Samsung hasn't confirmed an international release (despite the London reveal), but the ES9000 will definitely hit Korean markets with a hefty 19.8 million won (or $17450) price tag.
