Savant announces the return of company founder Robert Madonna as CEO, with a focus on innovative professional solutions, as well as the launch of consumer products established by outgoing CEO William Lynch.

Lynch remains at the company as advisor, and will assist with the leadership transition.

“Everyone at Savant would like to thank William for his vision, achievements and leadership while at Savant,” Madonna says. “Under his management, we created strong consumer product offerings as well as key relationships to establish a presence for the Savant brand at retail that will serve us well into the future.”

With the return of Madonna to daily operations Savant hopes to accelerate the bringing of premium solutions to market, addressing the needs of both CEDIA integrators and a growing retail channel.
