CEDIA announces CEDIA Certification exams will be available through Kryterion Global Testing Solutions, a provider of assessment and certification services with over 1000 testing centres worldwide.

“It has been a long-standing goal of CEDIA to make our certification exams more accessible to our members around the world,” the organisation says. “Members who previously could only take certification exams at the CEDIA show or at another CEDIA training event now have the flexibility to take the exam close to home.”

As a result of the partnership, whereas previously the UK had just one testing locations it now has 27 available locations where one can take a CEDIA Certification exam. In addition, Kryterion provides extensive exam development resources to help make more frequent and efficient exam updates while following testing best practices.

Certification tests include ESC (in both English and Spanish), ESC-T, ESC-D and ESC-N. Individuals looking to sign up for a certification exam need to purchase a voucher through the CEDIA website. Purchase provides a link to a Kryterion login, allowing one to select an exam time and location. The Kryterion website has a map of all testing locations.
